

The “Strategic Triangle Test” for Creating Public Value

Any public sector organization must bring its strategies into alignment by meeting three broad tests:

- Does this produce value for the public we serve?
- Is it able to attract support and money from the political system to which we're ultimately accountable?
- Can it feasibly be accomplished given our resource equation?